about the artist

I currently work as an Osteopath & Applied Kinesiologist (natural health doctor) in Singapore.

I've had many interests in the past, particularly in outdoor pursuits: Cycle racing, rock climbing, pot-holing & caving, paragliding, grass skiing, and used to teach kayaking in the UK. I have a passion for kayak surfing, but sadly not much of that in Singapore.

I look for adventure. By adventure however, I mean experiencing something new, not just flying to an exotic location. New experience means a new learning opportunity too. We should never stop learning about the world around us.

My photos essentially depict everyday life. Lives full of interest, intrigue and soul, that are so often missed as we go about our daily routines. For me, a picture succeeds if people stop for long enough to look at them, and hopefully, allow them the opportunity to break from their routine for a moment. They help us to break free for a moment to experiencing the wonderful things around us.

I have been producing artwork for more than 25 years. My work appears in private and corporate collections in Asia and Europe. Recent commissions in Singapore include public event advertising and images that hang throughout the Pan Pac Hotel.
